Exfoliation is a form of superficial skin resurfacing which removes the topmost layer of skin. Regular exfoliation works to rejuvenate skin by removing surface debris and dead skin cells to help promote the growth of healthy new skin cells.

Coarse skin

Before exfoliation skin may appear coarse and dull, with a build up of dead skin cells, enlarged pores and an uneven skintone.

Normal skin

Following exfoliation new healthy skin cells are revealed, skin appears brighter, pores are refined and surface debris is minimised.
